

M.Ed. in TEACHING and LEARNING

Together, helping teachers become better teachers

Saint Mary's University
SCHOOL of EDUCATION

Saint Mary's teaching and learning program is designed for — and exclusively by — practicing teachers and educational professionals. Together, you'll engage in a community with a shared passion for making a difference in the lives of all learners.

- Uniquely community-focused. Share experiences and exchange ideas that you can apply in the classroom immediately. As you build a close-knit community and create connections, you'll be part of a shared transformative educational experience.
- Learn your way, with two program options: Hybrid Learning Community or Virtual Learning Community (Online). Either way, you'll meet with your learning community one Saturday a month.
- Save time and money. Earn credit each semester by using your own classroom as a laboratory to apply and explore new learning.
- Become a teacher leader setting the pace for innovation and ethical leadership in teaching and learning in your district.

“ The M.Ed. in Teaching and Learning program is so much more than just a box-checking master’s education. This program will help you better understand yourself, your strengths, and your role as an educator. Most importantly, this program fosters joy. The facilitators are caring and passionate about the process, and the relationships I fostered through the learning community continue to inspire me daily. ”
