"I completed the Food Enzyme Institute online introductory seminars and was very impressed. I came away with excellent information that I can use in my practice to assist my clients with better health. It turns out Hippocrates was right when he said, 'all dis-ease begins in the gut.' I look forward to attending the seminars this summer!"

Chewing your food enough is often overlooked as an important start to the digestion process.
Not only is it needed so food can be swallowed without choking, it is also necessary to expose
as much surface area
as possible to the food so enzymes can begin digestion.

What is Your Nutritional Deficiency?: Find it, Fix it, and Feel Better!

"Infertility is not a disease any more than PMS is a disease. They are both evidence of a lack of normal function, which the body will restore if it has the nutrition to do so. It's all about restoring normal function."

The Enzyme Advantage For Women

"Getting the right nutrition, digesting it, reducing your stress, and perhaps adding the support of food enzymes, can put you back on track to a healthy life."
