Healthcare Career Training – Online

UMA gives you personalized attention as you train for a career as a medical administrative assistant. Professionals in this field may hold a position as front office staff, customer service representative or medical secretary.

Some skills you'll learn as a student:

- Greet patients and get them checked in
- Schedule appointments for patients
- Medical coding and filing insurance claims

Our online Medical Administrative Assistant associate degree program can help you get on the right career path. This program typically lasts 18 months. Classes at UMA help prepare you to take the Certified Medical Administrative Assistant (CMAA) exam. If you meet eligibility requirements and pass this exam, you'll become certified which can help you stand out as an applicant. This certification is considered an addition to the training you receive at UMA and is not required to graduate.

When you graduate, you'll be prepared to take the Certified Medical Administrative Assistant exam. And job search assistance service is included in tuition. Employment in this field is projected to grow 22 percent from 2018 to 2028.

1 QUICKER ENTRY INTO THE FIELD

Associate degree programs often take around two years to complete, while bachelor's are typically around four. If you want to get into the field sooner, pursuing an associate degree program in an allied healthcare role may help you achieve this goal.

2 A VARIETY OF CAREER PATHS

Allied healthcare offers diverse career opportunities, such as medical office and billing specialist, medical biller and coder, medical administrative assistant, and more. You can choose the area that interests you the most, whether it involves direct patient interaction or behind-the-scenes healthcare roles.

3 MULTIPLE SCHEDULING POSSIBILITIES

Allied healthcare positions offer flexibility in scheduling. Some roles follow the traditional 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. pattern, while others, like medical assistants and nursing assistants, provide services around the clock. This flexibility may be preferred if you have specific life obligations or want non-traditional work hours.

4 Benefits of Working in Allied Healthcare

IS ALLIED HEALTHCARE THE RIGHT FIELD FOR YOU?

In the end, only you can decide whether allied health is the right path for you. Considering the benefits that this field provides can help you make a more informed decision as to whether there is an allied health role that fits your career goals. If there is, you can get started working on those goals today.

Alexis, it's time to pursue your passion!

Get Started

Careers in healthcare haven't slowed down – neither should you. The healthcare field is projected to add about 2 million jobs from 2021-2031.¹ But we understand that sometimes obstacles can get in the way of your goals. Whether it's juggling family responsibilities, work, personal challenges, or difficult situations, it's easy to get sidetracked.

UMA Offers Flexible Schedules

Aside from on-site externships which have fixed schedules, attending an online program at UMA means that you can be flexible with your time.² Busy with the kids in the morning? Work on your coursework in the afternoon or evening. Working the nights shift? Log in to your classes each morning from your couch.

NEW STUDENT

WELCOME LETTERS

Dear UMA Student,

Welcome to UMA's Health Sciences - Medical Administrative Assistant associate degree program, and congratulations on your enrollment! Our goal is to help you become as career-ready as possible and this is the first big step. You've chosen a more comprehensive path to earning an education, helping to change your life and shape a better future. Remember the reasons you decided to pursue career education and hold onto them as you progress.

In your degree program, you'll have the opportunity to build necessary foundational field skills while enhancing your skill set in general areas that employers may look for. The knowledge available to you on this path has the potential to make a difference in your life and in the lives of others.

We're excited that you decided to pursue this career training path for yourself – and you should be, too! UMA typically helps grads in this program find entry-level jobs in the medical secretaries and assistant field, which is projected to grow 8 percent through 2031. That's nearly 53,600 job openings.¹

Remember, we're here to support you on every step of this journey. As a UMA student, you have access to services such as financial aid guidance, if you qualify, plus academic support, resource guidance for personal obstacles, career services, and so much more. When you graduate, you'll join over 80,000 alumni nationwide and receive job search assistance and access to an alumni-exclusive professional networking platform, among other benefits.

In this package, you'll find some special UMA swag. Wear it to show your school pride, and to remind yourself of your commitment to pursue an education. Visit the Puma Den at UMALearn.com to connect with resources and useful information to help you start strong.

We're so proud to have you as a part of our community of learning, and we look forward to speaking with you soon. If you have any questions, don't hesitate to reach out to us.

Sincerely,

Cassandra Presley
